HOSPITAL READY JULY 1.

Magnificent Memorial To Mrs.
Jennie Stuart Erected By Dr. Stuart.

CREDIT TO TOWN AND STATE.

Long-felt Need of Hopkinsville
Will Be Supplied For All Time.

The Jennie Stuart Memorial Hospital is fast nearing completion. By July 1st the building will be ready for occupancy.

This handsome and up-to-date structure is a contribution of Dr. E. S. Stuart, of Fairview, to the needs of the city and county. Some time last year, Dr. Stuart, seeing the needs of Hopkinsville in regard to hospital facilities, made known his desire to erect a hospital for the city. He appointed a board of directors and asked them to carry out his wishes. His only request was that the hospital should be named in honor of his deceased wife, Mrs. Jennie Stuart, and that one-fourth should be set aside for charity patients.

The board of directors, as selected by Dr. Stuart, was as follows: J. E. McPherson, Ira L. Smith, T. W. Long, W. A. Long, W. T. Tandy, Drs. Austin Bell and T. W. Blakey. This board is to be self-perpetuating. It is organized as follows: Chairman, J. E. McPherson; Secretary, Ira L. Smith; Treasurer, Dr. T. W. Blakey; President of the Hospital, Dr. Austin Bell.

Following the announcement of the magnificent gift of Dr. Stuart, the people of the city have shown much interest in the furnishing and equipping of the new building. Many asked that they be allowed to furnish rooms in honor of some loved one. It was decided by the board to grant these requests, and most of the private rooms have been spoken for, and one of the wards is being furnished by the Baptist church and it is understood that the other two wards will be similarly furnished by others.

The equipment of the Hopkinsville Infirmary has been taken over by the board of directors, and the remainder of the equipment needed has been bought.

The hospital will be a great benefit to the city and county, and to neighboring counties. The best of nurses will be secured, and these will be under the direction of Mrs. Wanda Williams, who has been one of the prime factors in the success of the Hopkinsville Infirmary.

The building is located on East Seventeenth Street, three blocks from Main on an elevated lot. The building faces north, and offers a beautiful view in every direction.

The structure fronts 75 feet, running back 110 feet. It is three stories in height, the first story being of range stone, rough finish, while the upper stories are of red brick, with white mortar. The entire building is trimmed in white dressed stone.

Over the front entrance is a handsome stone tablet with the words, "Jennie Stuart Memorial Hospital," carved in raised letters. The roof is of Spanish tile. The outside of the building presents an imposing appearance, but gives one an impression of substantiality and dignity. The first floor or basement consists of large halls, kitchen, dining rooms, pantry, toilet rooms, boiler and fuel rooms, and two large storage rooms. The whole of the basement has a concrete floor.

To enter the building from the front, one goes up a flight of steps, to a porch entrance. The first room is a large reception room. Connected with this by sliding doors is a large lecture room. This room is to be furnished with furniture and other furnishings from the home of the Dr. E. S. Stuart. Among these are a number of old relics, which will be placed in plate glass cases. These number an old family Bible, a rifle used by one of the Stuarts in the battle of Tippecanoe, and other interesting relics. On the walls of this room will be placed large oil paintings of Doctor Stuart, his wife and daughter.

To the left of the reception room is the superintendent's office, the nurses' sleeping rooms, toilets and baths. These rooms extend out from the building, making quite a home for the nurses. Back of the reception hall are large hallways, the floors of which are covered with battleship linoleum, making them noiseless. On the right of the hallway are five large well lighted private rooms with a linen room at the end. To the left is a large ward with four beds, and a diet kitchen with nurses' duty room, bath and toilet. To the rear of the building is a large sun parlor enclosed with glass.

The second floor contains the same hallways, sun porch, two wards, and seven private rooms, diet kitchen, nurses' duty, linen and toilet rooms. In the front, facing the north, is the suite of operating rooms, containing the operating room proper, the sterilizing room and an anesthetic room. The operating room has a large skylight for day work, and is also lighted with the most modern electrical fixtures for night work. The room is so heated that no ice or snow will be able to remain on the skylight at any time to impair the light. The operating room, as well as all the baths and toilets, has terrazzo floors, and base. The operating room has a marble wainscot five feet high, and all the woodwork is painted white enamel. Connected with this operating room is a bath and toilet for surgeons, provided with showers and all modern conveniences.

This suite of rooms is to be equipped with the best of everything and will contain all modern devices known in hospital usage. The grounds and walks are to be laid and graded by an expert. Trees and shrubs will be planted and the surroundings of the buildings will be kept in harmony with the imposing effect of the building itself.
